Introduction

In today's complex work environment, ensuring the safety and well-being of employees is paramount. This comprehensive guide on Workplace Violence (WPV) Prevention is designed to empower employers, managers, and employees with the knowledge and tools needed to recognize, report, and prevent potentially violent situations in the workplace. By understanding the signs and taking proactive measures, we can create safer, more secure work environments for everyone. This guide emphasizes the crucial "See Something, Say Something" approach to workplace safety.

Understanding Workplace Violence

WPV is prohibited and is defined as any act or threat of physical violence, harassment, intimidation, or other threatening disruptive behavior that occurs in the work setting. It encompasses a wide range of actions, including:

- ⚠️ Bullying, intimidation, or harassment
- ⚠️ Verbal, written, or indirect threats
- ⚠️ Aggressive or hostile acts
- ⚠️ Behavior that causes emotional distress or creates a reasonable fear of injury
- ⚠️ Physical assault or the threat of assault

The Scale of the Problem

WPV is a significant issue in the United States. According to recent statistics:

One in four have witnessed workplace violence happening to another employee, and 12% have been the target of workplace violence themselves.

25%

Fatalities due to violence and other injuries by persons or animals is increasing year-on-year. Homicides accounted for 62% of these fatalities in 2022.

The Warning Signs

What to Look For

Baseline "Red Flag" Behaviors

Be observant for the following baseline behaviors that might indicate a potential for violence:

Preoccupation with violent themes or revenge	History of violence, intimidation or bullying
Drug/alcohol abuse	Hyper-sensitive to criticism
Mental illness	Lack of empathy
Past pattern of direct or veiled threats	Feels entitled to receive special treatment
Talks about and/or fantasizes about revenge or violence	Holds grudges
Preoccupation or fascination with weapons	Poor attitude, continual excuses and blames others for his/her problems
A "loner", few interests outside work	Frequently angry or argumentative

Changes in Baseline Behavior

Pay attention to significant changes in an individual's behavior, such as:

Decline in productivity

Concentration problems

Attendance problems

Social isolation

Increase in angry outbursts

Careless health & hygiene

Depression

Life-Changing Events

Be aware that certain life events can increase the risk of violent behavior:

Recent family problems (e.g., divorce)	Legal difficulties
Financial problems	Job loss / Termination

The probability for a violent act to occur increases greatly when occurring with Baseline Behaviors, Changes in Baseline Behaviors AND a Life-Changing Event.

What To Do Next

Reporting

When you feel uncomfortable, and particularly if you see the three conditions on the previous page (baseline behaviors, changes in behavior, and a life-changing event), report immediately to any of the following:

Direct supervisor or other member of management

Local or facility Human Resources and/or Security

Your organization's Ethics Hotline

911 if there is an immediate threat

REMEMBER: See Something, Say Something

Your Role in Prevention

Proactive Steps for a Safer Workplace

Workplace violence is preventable if everyone does their part and works together. Here's what you can do:

- ⚠ Understand and comply with security measures.
- ⚠ Do not allow unknown persons to enter the workplace with you or use your badge to open doors for someone else.
- ⚠ Understand and comply with security measures.
- ⚠ Never prop open security doors.
- ⚠ Do not escalate confrontation – follow appropriate procedures to resolve conflicts.
- ⚠ Know what to do during WPV emergencies.
- ⚠ Contribute to an environment of mutual respect.
- ⚠ Challenge and correct unsafe practices and conditions.
- ⚠ Know when to take action.
- ⚠ Report co-worker WPV concerns in a timely manner, including personal threats from external or domestic sources. Domestic violence and stalking can impact many people, and help can be provided if reported.
- ⚠ Do not simply dismiss unusual behavior. Report it.

Everyone must do their part to keep themselves and others safe.

Safeguarding your workplace against violence is an ongoing commitment that we can achieve together.
